Newsletter Honored by Northeast Economic Development Association (10/13/05)

The Carroll County Department of Economic Development's summer 2005 newsletter "Business Expansion Issue" has been named "Superior/Best of Category" by the Northeastern Economic Developers Association (NEDA) as part of their 2005 Literature & Promotions Competition. NEDA is comprised of Economic Development organizations from Maine to Maryland and east of Ohio.

Eric Anderson, Executive Director of NEDA said, "NEDA's Literature & Promotions Awards recognize the very best – and most effective – work in our profession. The judges can, and sometimes do, choose not to give an award at all. Therefore you may be justifiably proud that your work has met the test of your colleagues – and competitors – from throughout the Northeastern United States. You should take special pride in your "Best of Category" award, indicating that yours was the best overall newsletter entry NEDA received this year regardless of [your organizations] budget."

"We are extremely pleased and honored that our newsletter took top honors in a region that comprises 11 states and many economic development organizations much larger than Carroll County" said Economic Development Director, Larry Twele. "We are always happy to showcase our local business success stories, and this business expansion issue again shows that Carroll is a vibrant business destination."

The award was presented during NEDA's annual conference which was held this year in Baltimore's Inner Harbor, October 8-11, 2005.

General Dynamics Breaks Ground on New Expansion (09/06/05)

Westminster, MD – General Dynamics Robotic Systems (GDRS) broke ground August 9, 2005 on a new 150,000 square foot building in the West Branch Trade Center. The new building, which is projected to open in the second quarter of 2006, will be home to approximately 135 new employees which will be added to their current workforce of over 300 over the next several years.

"The expansion consolidates our manufacturing operations under one roof, helps grow Carroll County's resident industries, assists in attracting a diverse workforce to the area and strengthens the regions contribution of our nation's defense" said GDRS president Scott Myers. The initiative will move machining and assembly operations from several leased facilities and will allow GDRS's current 80,000 square foot building in the West Branch Trade Center to be converted into an advanced engineering center.

"We are extremely pleased with General Dynamics' continued success and expansion here in Carroll County," said Lawrence F. Twele, director of Carroll County Dept. of Economic Development. "We've seen GDRS grow from a small machine shop into a world-class manufacturing firm that will soon occupy well over 200,000 square feet. Carroll County's location in the Baltimore/Washington technology corridor, our qualified workforce, and our business retention programs are key attributes that helped GDRS to prosper."

In fact, the local workforce is so good says Congressman Roscoe Bartlett (R – MD 6th Dist.), "that companies with divisions elsewhere always say how great their [local] workforce is compared to other places around the country."

The GDRS expansion will help the company fulfill a 2003 contract to develop the Autonomous Navigation System (ANS) for the U.S. Army's Future Combat Systems (FCS) program, and expand their capacity to manufacture the ammunition handling system on the U.S. Army's newest combat vehicle, the Stryker Mobile Gun System.

GDRS is wholly owned by General Dynamics Land Systems which is a wholly owned subsidiary of General Dynamics, headquartered in Falls Church, VA. General Dynamics employs nearly 71,000 people worldwide and had 2004 revenue of over $19 billion.

Warfield Complex Redevelopment Officially Breaks New Ground (05/23/05)

Witnessed by a crowd of over 200, state, county, municipal and business dignitaries turned the soil at the Warfield Complex on Tuesday May 17th; kicking off a project that will eventually create nearly 600,000 square feet of mixed-use office space and bring over 1,000 white collar jobs to Carroll County.

In 1995 the state deemed the 96 acre complex and its 14 buildings, part of the Springfield Hospital Center, as surplus. Through the efforts of Sykesville Mayor Jonathon Herman and the support of the Carroll County Commissioners, the state conveyed the property to serve as an economic engine for both the town and county.

The Town of Sykesville eventually annexed the property into its' corporate limits.

The Town of Sykesville created the Warfield Development Corporation to develop and operate what Mayor Herman called the "Warfield Corporate and Cultural Center," while preserving the historic nature of the site. Herman said it is an "ambitious vision, but a clear and realistic one. We have hammered out partnerships that created the best new economic engine in Carroll County."

In December 2004, the first lease was signed by KB Warfield, LLC, which has begun to restore and develop "Building I" for use by Nexion Health, Inc. Nexion, headquartered in Eldersburg, operates 39 skilled nursing facilities throughout Texas, Louisiana and Colorado. Francis P. Kirley, President and CEO of Nexion, alluded to the irony of his company's move to "a place that has provided health care" in Carroll County for years.

Funding from the state, county and other invested partners will also construct a new gateway intersection for the complex which will allow traffic on Route 32 to flow efficiently. Construction on the intersection is expected to begin in late 2005.

Governor Robert L. Ehrlich, Jr. delivered the keynote remarks at the groundbreaking ceremony. The Governor spoke highly of the project as a "great example of planning appropriately," and a "cornerstone of a historic place where the opportunities are limitless." The groundbreaking celebration marks the formal beginning of a project that has been nearly 10 years in the making with visible progress now beginning to occur.

Construction Begins for New Building in the Carroll County Commerce Center (03/11/05)

Construction has commenced for Building III, a new single-story 35,000 square foot flex/office building, at the Carroll County Commerce Center in Westminster.

04 - Page 15 of 20

Developed by Corporate Center Leasing, LLC, the building is expected to be complete by the third quarter of 2005. NAI KLNB will continue to handle the exclusive leasing activities for the project, with Walter Patton and Michael Mull overseeing the marketing program.

Located near the intersection of MD Routes 140 and 97, the Carroll County Commerce Center is a 30-acre business community that presently contains two flex/office buildings comprising approximately 62,000 square feet of space. Current occupants of the center include Carleton Technologies, a manufacturer of pneumatic systems and components for the defense and aerospace industries, and Kroll Background America recently leased 7000 square feet of space moving from a smaller facility in Hampstead, MD. Other tenants at the center, which is 98% leased, include Wells Fargo Home Mortgage, Carroll Occupational Health, Ross Metal Products and the Carroll County Chamber of Commerce.

The new building features bay sizes starting at 2400 square feet, free surface parking and the choice of dock or drive-in loading. It will be suitable for 100% office space, 100% manufacturing and warehouse space or any combination in-between.

"The term flex/office space signifies...this building design is suitable for a range of uses including service-oriented, medical or sales and administration operations," stated Walter Patton of NAI KLNB. "The flex/office concept has been embraced throughout the Baltimore-Washington region, and Carroll County features the type of diverse business base that can benefit from this design."

"The [Carroll County] Commerce Center is the type of brick-and-glass employment campus that the county is seeking" said Lawrence Twele, Director of Carroll County's Department of Economic Development. "The fact that a third building is under construction because the others are nearly full is a testament to the need for this kind of business park."

Mr. Patton added, "Carroll County is increasingly becoming a viable option for a number of office and manufacturing firms, and we have experienced a significant acceleration of showings in the county over the past year. We currently have interest from a number of companies seeking up to 15,000 square feet of space in the new building."
